Introduction to Plymouth Marjon University

Plymouth Marjon University is a Church of England Voluntary University. Its constituent Colleges, St John's (1840) and St Mark's (1841) were founded to meet an urgent educational need for trained teachers at a time when the government made no direct contribution to higher education.

The original College of St Mark was founded on the belief of Derwent Coleridge, the first Principal that the primary purpose of the College must be to widen the educational horizons of its trainees. James Kay-Shuttleworth established St John's to provide teacher training to meet the social and economic needs of industrialisation based on the concept of education as self-realisation. Both Colleges stressed the importance of interchange between academic study and broader experience and the role of an enlightened teaching profession in furthering social and economic development. Both Colleges were among the first to open access to degree level study outside the universities.

The two Colleges merged in 1923, establishing a single institution in Chelsea, which developed a wider reputation for academic excellence and commitment to teaching.

The College moved to Plymouth in 1973, and its educational activities have continued to evolve in response to local, regional, national and international needs.

In May 2007, the College became a University College with the ability to award its own degrees.

In 2013 the University College became a University with the new title of Plymouth Marjon University.

Our Mission

The University is committed to:

- Provide high quality learning programmes and work towards the achievement of university title
- Achieve excellence in learning and teaching
- Provide a high-quality student experience
- Deliver sustainable futures
- Be inclusive and accessible
- Work creatively in partnership
- Build capacity and good practice in research

The University aims to be an open, friendly and active community, taking initiatives to meet changing social and economic needs locally, nationally and internationally.

Welcome from the Vice-Chancellor

I'm delighted that you have joined Marjon to train to become a teacher.

We have always had a strong emphasis on professional education and social mobility – helping people to change their lives and their careers through education. We ensure that your commitment to further study leads not only to the skills and qualifications you need, but also gives you a fresh confidence, a network of contacts and a clear-sighted and well-informed approach to your career. We have almost 180 years of heritage in teacher training and our great reputation continues to this day. Countless schools, children and young people have benefitted from teachers who have been trained at Marjon. And many of our trainees have gone on to become senior teachers, head teachers, academics and leading influencers in the profession.

As trainee teacher you will work very closely with our staff team, being challenged and challenging them in turn. Your peer group will supply diverse insights and experiences, all of which will inspire your future career.

We are above all a welcoming, supportive and people-centred University, and so we place a high value on education through human relationships. Your training will be intensive and demanding, but I sincerely hope it will also be life-transforming, both for you in your chosen profession and for those you teach in future. May you have a demanding, stretching, transforming and yet thoroughly enjoyable training experience!

Welcome to the Marjon learning community.

Professor Robert Warner
Vice-Chancellor and Chief Executive

Dear School Direct trainee,

We are really pleased to welcome you on to the School Direct Postgraduate Certificate in Education (PGCE) programme at Plymouth Marjon University; a Level 7 programme earning 60 Masters level credits.

The programme is structured to enable you to develop as an effective and reflective classroom practitioner. There are many and varied opportunities for you to develop your knowledge, skills, understanding and critical awareness of learning and teaching through the University and within your school-based training.

The year ahead will be intensive, demanding, stimulating and challenging for you, both personally and professionally. There will be times of exhilaration and exhaustion during your time here. It is important to realise that you are not on your own and that your tutors in the university and in schools are here to support you. You will also gain support from your peers through sharing experiences and ideas with them.

The best advice we offer from comments made by previous trainees is to: 'pace yourself and take measures to avoid burn out; it is a long distance not a sprint, so do not forget to breathe!'

We look forward to working with you during what we expect will be a rewarding, enjoyable and successful time here at Plymouth Marjon University.

Director of Marjon Teacher Education Partnership

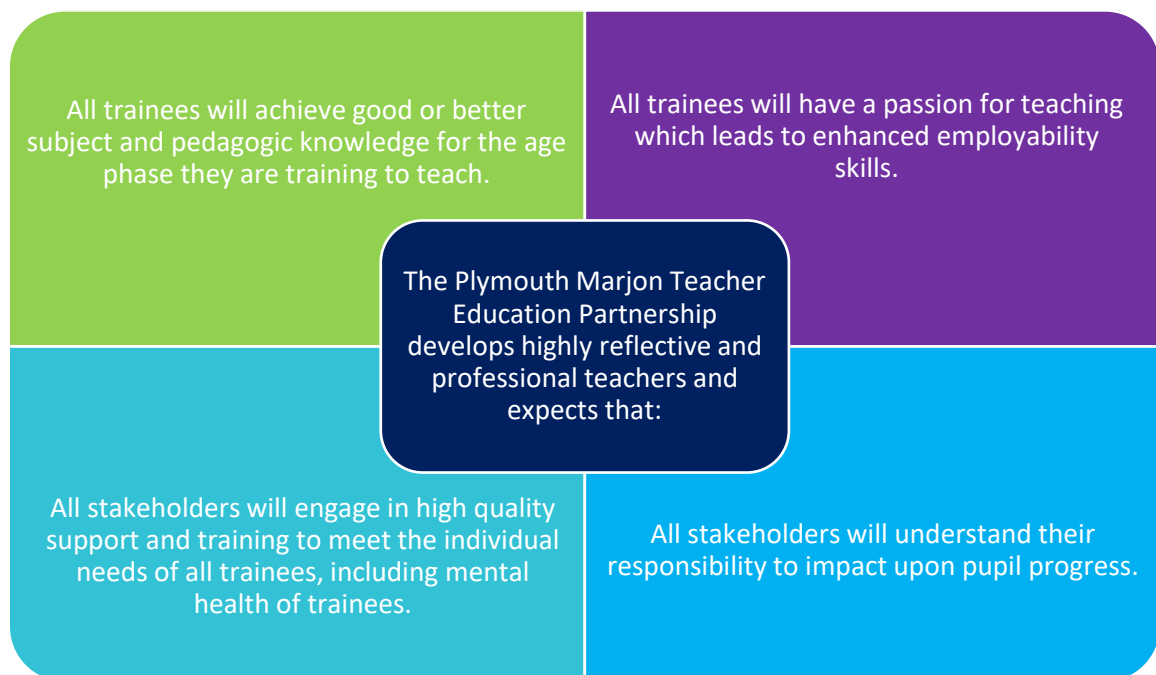

The aim of MTEP's provision is:

- that our ambitious, integrated and sequenced MTEP curricula are the drivers for all trainees progress
- that there is consistency in both processes and judgements across all of our provision
- that schools and staff working with any of our programmes have a firm and common understanding of the intended curriculum and are confident with our QTS expectations and outcomes

Our MTEP vision for excellence and ambitious MTEP curriculum leads and drives our trainees' progress across all of our provision. Our processes are aligned with the MTEP curriculum, the CCF, the ECF, the ITE Ofsted inspection framework and the Teachers' Standards.

Our vision for excellence is as below:

The Plymouth Marjon Teacher Education Partnership is a values-based collaborative partnership that ensures excellent outcomes for children, pupils, trainees and teachers.

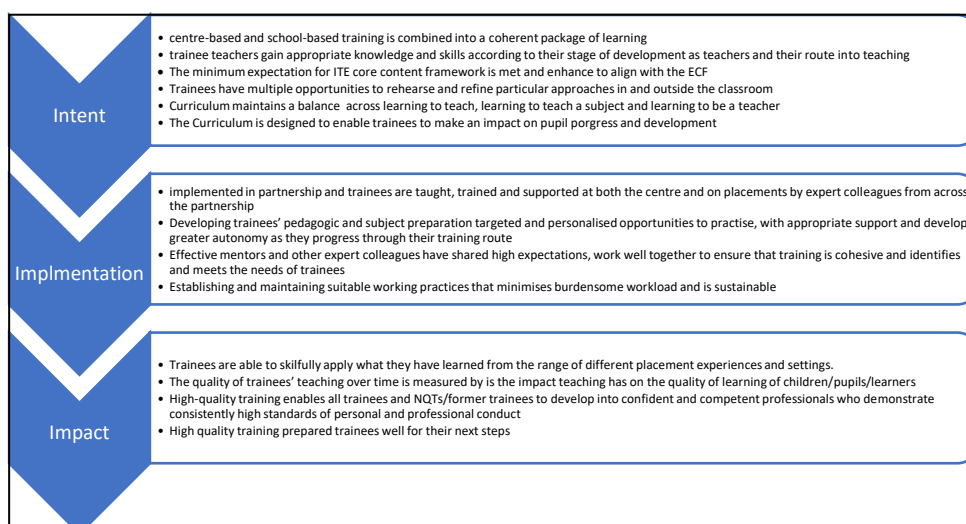

Our MTEP curriculum is outlined in three themes:

1. The professional role of the developing teacher
2. Development of teaching and learning
3. Curriculum and specialisms

These themes are embedded in all MTEP modules across our provision. These themes are linked to, but not defined by, both the 5 core areas of the CCF and the Teachers' Standards.

	Core Content Framework	Teachers' Standards
The professional role of the developing teacher	Behaviour management Professional behaviours Pedagogy	TS1, TS7, Part 2 TS8, Part 2 TS2, TS4, TS5
Development of teaching and learning	Behaviour management Professional behaviours Assessment Pedagogy	TS1, TS7, Part 2 TS8, Part 2 TS6 TS2, TS4, TS5
Curriculum and specialisms	Pedagogy Curriculum	TS2, TS4, TS5 TS3

It is important that our curriculum is 'intentionally coherent' (intent), delivered in 'effective ways' (implementation) and 'transforms trainees practice' (impact). Ofsted, 2021

School Direct University Quality Assurance Tutors

The School Direct University Quality Assurance Tutors have a role in ensuring that schools within the partnership are supporting and providing relevant training for all trainees. Each school is assigned a QA tutor who will make regular visits throughout the academic year.

The most effective way to make contact with School Direct staff is through email.

Staff will normally respond to e-mails within three working days. Working days are Monday to Friday and exclude Bank Holidays and the Christmas Closure period. There are multiple demands on staff time including research, fieldwork visits and activities, and of course preparation and marking and this means there will be times when they cannot meet the three-day response. When this happens, their email will show an 'out of office' message and will provide an indication of when you may reasonably expect a response and a point of contact for urgent enquiries.

The School Direct PGCE Team

The School Direct team of module tutors is a highly committed team with a vast range of experience in schools, teacher education and in educational research.

Quality Assurance of the School Direct PGCE Programme

Mechanisms to Quality Assure the Consistency and Quality of both Judgement and Training Sessions

1. Partnership colleagues who are trained Ofsted inspectors will provide annual training with regards to the school inspection framework.
2. University staff engaged in External Examination at other teacher training partnerships will moderate judgements and training decisions and activities against those in the Plymouth Marjon University's Teacher Education Partnership.
3. The Plymouth Marjon University's Teacher Education Partnership External Examiners are required to moderate the judgement of trainees and to observe taught sessions both in the University and in school to assure quality.
4. A small number of school-based colleagues in the Plymouth Marjon University Teacher Education Partnership form part of a peer observation process, identifying and sharing good practice across university and school-based sessions.
5. A teacher training colleague from an Ofsted rated 'outstanding' provider will verify Partnership judgements with regards to trainees
6. An external, Ofsted-trained colleague will moderate Partnership judgements with regards to trainees.

We are continually looking to ensure that all trainees' experiences are of high quality. Listening and responding to trainees' views is very important to us. The trainee voice is heard through: module evaluation, end of course evaluations and the staff trainee liaison committee. These all feed into the course report and ultimately to Academic Board and the University Management Team.

This process is managed through the following committees and meetings:

Staff/Trainee Liaison Committee

This committee meets three times and is an important way for trainee representatives to pass on issues from peers to the School Direct Lead. Link tutors are also invited to these meetings. The meetings are recorded and then presented to the Course Committee. Issues can then be formally addressed.

Subject Meetings

These meetings deal with all matters relating to the organisation and management of School Direct.

It consists of:

- PAL (Chair)
- All School Direct tutors

The Faculty Management Team

This meets regularly and advises the Dean on all matters relating to the organisation and management of the faculty and to the maintenance of quality and standards in the faculty. Minutes from the Course

Committee meeting are considered at this meeting. Relevant issues are taken to the University Management Team which consists of Heads of Departments and the Faculty Administration Manager.

Primary Partnership Strategic Group

The group meets termly to discuss the operation and development of Primary ITE programmes.

It consists of:

- Partnership representative – Chair
- Dean of MTEP
- Associate Director of MTEP
- Representatives from School Direct Partnership schools
- PAL: Postgraduate Primary ITE

Role of the Quality Assurance University Tutor (QA UT)

Each school and trainee will be assigned a QA UT. The QA UT will visit 4 times throughout the academic year, 3 times during the trainee's lead school experience and once during their second school placement. The visits are part of Plymouth Marjon University's quality assurance procedures to ensure that trainees are receiving suitable school-based training to enable them to achieve the Teachers' Standards.

Visit schedule for QA University Tutors

QA Visit 1	QA Visit 2 (Second School Placement)	QA Visit 3	QA Visit 4 (Final Assessment)
7 th Nov – 14 th Nov 2022	30 th Jan – 6 th Feb 2023	20 th Mar – 27 th Mar 2023	12 th June – 19 th June 2023

Host / Lead School	Complementary / Second School Placement
5 th September 2022 – 25 th July 2023	2 nd January – 27 th March 2023

QA visit expectations:

- Visits will be organised through the trainee's mentors through either email or telephone.
- Each QA monitoring visit should be no longer than 3 hours per trainee.
- Trainees should provide both the mentor and QA tutor with lesson planning, lesson observation form and other materials relevant to the lesson being observed (observation pack).
- Trainees should have all evidence (paper based or electronic) readily available for QA tutors
- Mentors need to provide a space for the QA tutor to work during their visit
- The school or alliance's paperwork should be used for both the lesson observations and feedback.
- Mentors need to organise sufficient time within the visit for the QA tutors to observe the trainee, talk with the trainee and themselves.
- The mentor needs to be available for the majority of the visit time.
- During the visit the QA Monitoring Report Form should be completed with the mentor and a copy should be provided for the mentor.
- If there are any particular issues as a result of the QA visit, the QA tutor will liaise with the Link Tutor.

- A joint lesson observation will take place by the QA tutor and mentor. It needs to be a maximum of 30 minutes.
- The QA UT will meet with the trainee to discuss trainee and pupil progress. Focus of discussion should be based on the four key headings on the Report Form.
- The QA UT will meet with the mentor to discuss trainee and pupil progress. Focus of discussion should be based on the four key headings on the Report Form.
- The QA UT will review and examine evidence available that shows progress against the Teacher Standards (e.g., trainee paperwork/files/Mosaic).
- It is not the responsibility of the QA UT to carry out thorough checks of trainee's files. This should be done by the mentor in weekly review meetings. However, QA tutors will look at elements of file and can request particular evidence if needed.
- It is not the QA UT role to make a judgement of progress during the final visit. This final judgement (pass/fail) should be decided by the mentor and agreed during the final visit in conjunction with the QA UT.

Trainee Engagement with Subject Knowledge

How can we inspire and challenge pupils without understanding how to make a topic accessible and interesting? How can we ensure progression and good outcomes for pupils without knowing the steps in learning required to get them there? Likewise, how are we to adapt our teaching to respond to the needs of the individuals in the class if we cannot recognise areas the children may find challenging, or we cannot think creatively about presenting knowledge in a variety of ways? Subject knowledge is much more than “Do I know how to answer that question?”

This model from the TDA (2007) gives a framework illustrating aspects of subject knowledge that we need to think about as teachers. Each element is made up of a range of skills, knowledge and understanding.

Subject knowledge per se	The essential knowledge and understanding needed in order to teach a subject effectively
Pedagogy: subject theory and practice	An understanding of the teaching skills and strategies needed to teach all pupils effectively
Pupils' development	An understanding of how learning is linked to pupils' development and their social, religious, ethnic, cultural and linguistic backgrounds and contexts
Attitudes	Positive attitudes to pupils' learning that underpin subject knowledge, skills and understanding

Ofsted emphasise the importance of subject knowledge in effective teaching in numerous publications, e.g. ‘The best teachers combine deep knowledge and understanding of the subject with well-informed appreciation of how pupils learn...’ (Ofsted 2008:38). It is well documented that teachers who develop all aspects of their subject knowledge are more confident and achieve better outcomes for their pupils.

The importance of secure subject knowledge cannot be over-emphasised. With this in mind, we expect trainees to engage with developing their subject knowledge for the core subjects over the duration of the programme and beyond. Trainees should engage frankly, purposefully and professionally with the process of improving their subject knowledge as a lifetime endeavour (Core Content Framework and the Teachers' Standards). They will be required to demonstrate that involvement through their work in school, personal study and discussions with mentors and university tutors. Setting up and maintaining a subject knowledge portfolio is an integral part of that evidence. Many subject knowledge targets can emerge out of the trainee's school experiences and that they may want to study aspects of understanding that emerge from any lesson. The distinctions between content, curriculum and pedagogical knowledge are complex and interactive.

Trainees are expected to engage fully with their own subject knowledge throughout their time at university, through GNPM52 and during placement. Below is the overview of their tasks. Mentors and QA UTs will need to ensure that the trainee is engaging with these appropriately.

Task	Completed by...	Task description
1	The end of September	You need to access to SD Primary on CANVAA and find the 'Subject Knowledge Development' topic box. Complete the electronic audits for English, maths and science, following the instructions for each. On completion of the audits take a screen shot of your final score and make a note of those areas where you feel you need to develop your understanding for teaching.
2	The end of September	Look at the mapping sheets for English, maths and science on CANVAS in GNPM52. These contain statements relating to the National Curriculum for the different areas of learning within each subject. In the initial column, rate yourself as Red, Amber or Green according to the following criteria: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Red – "I do not know what that objective means" or "I am unsure I would be able to answer questions on that myself" • Amber – "I understand what the objective means but I would not be able to explain it to children using suitable language and resources" or "I could answer questions on that but I don't know how I would break the learning down to make it accessible for a child" • Green – "I am confident that I understand the objective and have a range of ways that I would be able to explain the learning to a child in an age appropriate way" Make a note of any areas that you need to develop your understanding for teaching further.
Task 3	UT visit Autumn	Create 3 priority targets for each core subject (9 in total) using the action plan pro forma provided in the appendices of the SK Development Guidance document. Ensure your targets relate to your subject knowledge development needs and are relevant for your classroom context. (Begin working on your targets).
Task 4	UT visit Spring	By the time you see your UT you need to have completed the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) a minimum of 2 targets per subject and have the physical evidence to show your tutor. 2) Retaken the subject knowledge audits on CANVAS (see task 1) 3) Set yourself a further 2 targets per subject for future work, including the actions you intend to take. 4) Returned to each of the subject mapping sheets to RAG rate yourself for the second time (column 2)
Task 5	UT visit Summer	You will have completed and have evidence for, a minimum of 4 targets per subject. A further 2 targets per subject will be identified on your action plans, for work and development through the remainder of your training and into your ECT period. You will have RAG rated yourself for the final time on each of the mapping sheets (column 3). Your tutor will rate your overall engagement with developing your subject knowledge across the year during this visit.

Assessing trainee progress

All School Direct trainees will follow the Plymouth Marjon University's assessment structure for assessing trainee progress. Trainee progress will be monitored through the use of weekly progress meetings and progress points through the year. These meetings will focus on the MTEP curriculum themes that are aligned to both the Core Content Framework and the Teachers' Standards.

These are formative documents that allow both the trainee and mentor to track training and progress towards the award of QTS.

Week	Date (w/c)	Progress Point
16	12.12.22	1
30	20.03.23	2
39	22.05.23	3
43	19.06.23	4

Progress Point 1 (end of Autumn term) is based on your progress so far. In discussion with your mentor reflect on the evidence in your weekly progress meetings and lesson observations and agree the progress made. Use this to set clear targets for the next part of your training. If there are aspects to develop it is vital you listen and act upon advice given to make the required progress.

Progress Point 2 (Spring half term) is based on your progress so far. In discussion with your mentor reflect on the evidence in your weekly progress meetings and lesson observations and agree the progress made.

Progress Point 3 (end of Spring term) is based on your progress so far. In discussion with your mentor reflect on the evidence in your weekly progress meetings and lesson observations and agree the progress made.

Progress Point 4/Summary (end of term 3) It encourages you to look forward to your induction period as an ECT, celebrating your strengths and identifying your next steps in your teaching career. This is your opportunity to demonstrate that you have met the expected outcomes and achieved QTS.

Mentoring Trainee Teachers Principles

MTEP's aim is that our ambitious, integrated and sequenced MTEP curricula drives trainee progress and supports mentoring and progress towards QTS. Our vision for excellence and the MTEP curricula is aligned to, but not defined by the, Core Content Framework (CCF), the Early Career Framework (ECF), the ITE Ofsted inspection framework, the Teachers' Standards(TS) and the Teachers' Standards (EY).

We aim for our mentors to offer a supportive, constructive, professional relationship with their trainees. These relationships will foster trust and confidence. There will be a focus on learning and development through learning conversations and working with expert others. We aspire for our trainees to be able to manage their own learning, so they maximise their potential, develop their skills, improve performance and become the teacher they wish to be. MTEP, in partnership with our mentors, is ambitious. We expect our trainees to strive to become the best they can be and to become Early Career Teachers that make a difference and empower children and young adults to become lifelong learners.

Our MTEP Mentoring Principles are offered with a view to clarifying the purpose of mentoring, what is expected of mentors and trainees in the mentor-trainee relationship, and the nature of developmental support that mentoring should provide. It recognises that trainees are expected to grow in both competence and confidence as they progress through their placements. The creation of a democratic framework in mentoring in which mentors and trainees work together to facilitate change, encourages mentors to open up their own practice to scrutiny and recognise that they too can still learn. This allows collaboration rather than 'master-servant' relationships. This supports learning through reciprocal interactions by placing equal value on both the mentor's and mentee's participation.

MTEP advocates a democratic approach to mentoring as opposed to a hierarchical one. By representing the mentoring relationship as a shared experience between professionals, rather than the more traditional master and apprentice model, the focus shifts from an unequal to a more balanced relationship and moves towards an emphasis on creating the right environment for change as opposed to instruction on what to change. (Thompson, 2019) Two texts we are using to support our principles of mentoring and to support our mentors are Mentoring in Schools. Haili Hughes (2021) and The Magic of Mentoring. Carol Thompson (2019) Consideration has also been given to the National Standards for school-based ITT mentors. We recognise that our MTEP mentors 'have a crucial role to play in supporting...our trainees...during their training.'

Teaching and Learning

Deep and sustained learning happens when learners are empowered to take responsibility for their own learning. Trainees are more likely to reach their full potential on courses that encourage them to develop as independent learners and the best teaching supports this process. Our role, in today's world of electronic communication, is to help trainees to manage their own learning using a wide range of methods, including web-based and other electronic forms of study. The University community has to work flexibly and reflectively so that we can all promote lifelong learning for each other as we embrace new approaches to learning and teaching. The University Learning and Teaching Policy can be found in the Student Handbook.

Inclusiveness and access

The University and the MTEP team will:

- Acknowledge that trainees come from diverse backgrounds and have the right to expect that their diverse cultural, religious and ethnic backgrounds will be respected
- Work hard to provide trainees with a rich educational experience during their time here
- Encourage flexibility of study and recognise that there are different styles of learning and different disciplinary cultures
- Encourage learning and teaching approaches which reflect a commitment to equal opportunities and ever-wider access

The Code of Practice on Equal Opportunities and Cultural and Religious Diversity with regard to the Student Experience is included in the Student Handbook.

Commitment to support for staff and trainees

The University and the MTEP team will:

- Recognise that teachers are lifelong learners themselves, and need time for scholarly and research activity, in order to enrich their teaching and to facilitate effective learning
- Want to provide the highest standards of support, guidance and feedback.

School Direct University taught sessions

Safeguarding yourself

For trainees and ECTs entering the profession, technology is a vital part of your professional and personal lives. Various appropriate material to support teachers, trainees and NQTs have been designed to ensure that you are ready to face these challenges whether at school or at home, in the classroom, or in the wider school community. It is important that you look after your professional reputation, and this is just as relevant online as offline. Before you start your placement or begin to look for employment, you should review online content which relates to you.

Handing in Assignments

	Hand in (on or before)	Hand back
GNPM51	Friday 28.10.22	Friday 25.11.22
GNPM52	Thursday 12.01.23	Thursday 09.02.23
GNPM53	Thursday 02.03.23	Thursday 30.03.23
GNPM54	Thursday 01.06.23	Thursday 29.06.23

Please note, in order to be awarded a PGCE, assignments must meet the relevant criteria.

- All assignments MUST be submitted on or before the date specified and submitted on Turnitin through Canvas by 11.59pm.
- All assignments are electronically registered in terms of date and time.
- All assignments must have attached a coversheet detailing name, trainee number, assignment title and module code.
- If you need to claim for extenuating circumstances you will need to access the online form Registry - Extenuating Circumstances Information and will also need to provide relevant documentation to support your claim.
- Marked assignments will be available from Turnitin.
- If a trainee is given the opportunity to re-sit an assignment a charge will be made. Submission of a deferred assignment will incur no charge. Please see the Student Regulations Handbook which can also be found on the University website:

Student Regulations Framework | Plymouth Marjon University

Late submission of assignments

Coursework submitted after the published submission time and date, but within ten working days of that date, will be marked. The mark awarded will be subject to a reduction of ten marks per day (or part of a day, and by this anything received after the deadline will be considered to be a day late and so on), for a maximum of five working days or until the module pass mark has been reached: thereafter, coursework will be capped at the module pass mark if received within ten working days. In each case, the mark the work merits will also be shown on the coursework. (See Student Regulations Framework)

If you think you have a valid reason for not meeting a deadline, then discuss your problems with the relevant module leader and make a claim for extenuating circumstances by submitting a form to Registry. Do not leave this to the last minute.

It is the responsibility of trainees to request consideration of extenuating circumstances. You can get confidential advice from the Programme Lead or the module leader and from Student Support, but it is up to you to ensure that appropriate documentation is provided to back up any claim you make. Claims are considered by a committee on a need to know basis. This means that your personal details will not be divulged beyond the committee. The committee will simply notify the Chair of the Module Assessment Board whether your claim for extenuating circumstances has been upheld.

If you do not submit coursework you will automatically receive a 0 (zero) grade. Module tutors are not allowed to grant extensions. If your claim for extenuating circumstance is upheld, you will be required to submit work at a later date and you will be awarded the full mark.

Presentation of assignments

All assignments must be word-processed. Your ability to use IT is part of the assessment of your professional competence as set out in the Teachers' Standards. You may use the computing facilities at University situated near the Library if needed.

When presenting an assignment, you should:

- Use good margins (at least 2 cm)
- Use at least 1.5 spacing between lines. If single spacing is used, it is difficult for Tutors when marking
- Use Calibri font size 12
- Include a cover page which must include your student number, the date of submission and title of assignment
- Include a word count on the front cover
- Number the pages
- Use accurate punctuation, expression and grammar
- Use correct spelling
- Put your student number (in small font) at the top of each page
- Do not use the name of a school or of particular pupils or staff in any assignment
- Use the APA System of referencing and acknowledge all references. Guidance can be found here: study skills pages. This is an aspect that persistently attracts comments from tutors and ultimately lowers the standard of the finished piece of work

Plagiarism

- It is important that YOU ACKNOWLEDGE ALL REFERENCES, otherwise you will be committing plagiarism, which is considered a very serious matter, and if confirmed, will result in a fail grade. The university guidelines on plagiarism can be found in the Student Regulations Framework Student Regulations Framework
- Module tutors are very alert to any examples of plagiarism. They will have read widely in the areas related to the assignments and will be familiar with the texts and resources you are using, and so will be able to detect plagiarism more easily than you think. Of course, we are pleased to see that you have read appropriately and want to include this reading in the assignment, but you must indicate that you have read it, and then critically engage with this reading and not try and pass it off as your own work!
- Turnitin also provides a similarity score when you submit it which gives a percentage score relating to how much of your work is similar to an enormous range of sources online. Turnitin Guide
- You are advised to be vigilant, and to consult with staff if you have any doubts. Cutting corners when under pressure, is likely to mean that you are less vigilant than normal. The consequences can be serious, so you need to exercise great care when submitting any piece of work for assessment. Details of cheating and plagiarism are kept on trainees' records.

Communications

Communication with tutors is primarily through University e-mail. University email and Internet access is free to all trainees who have completed the necessary registration. If you should experience any problems with your University e-mail, contact Computing & Media Services immediately. It is important that you use your email since this is the main form of communication between the University and you. You should contact the Programmes Team programmes@marjon.ac.uk for enquiries about your PGCE. When on placement you should contact the Placements Team placements@marjon.ac.uk to inform them of any absence from school.

Mobile phones

Please keep mobile phones switched off or on silent during teaching sessions unless you are waiting for an urgent message. In such cases you should inform the appropriate module tutor.

Mosaic

School Direct trainees and mentors will be provided with access to the University's virtual e-portfolio system – Mosaic. You will be given a password and access to Mosaic early in September 2021. Mosaic provides information about all modules and assignments as well as making reference to important documents and research papers. It is essential that trainees and mentors refer to Mosaic on a regular basis as important information and announcements concerning the School Direct will be posted here.

Attendance

Participation in the School Direct PGCE programme is a full-time commitment. Repeated absence without good cause is unacceptable on a professional course of training. Non-attendance or poor attendance will result in a 'Cause for Concern'.

- Attendance is monitored
- If a trainee is ill and is going to be absent from school or any of the University sessions they MUST phone Jo Carkett, School Direct Administrator – 01752 636800, stating their name, session to be missed, reason for absence and when they are expected to return. The absence is then recorded, and a message passed on to the respective module tutor.

Professional Expectations

This is a professional course and, as such, it is expected that trainees demonstrate professional behaviour at all times during their University sessions.

Applying for Initial Teaching Posts

- Most appointments to teaching posts take effect at the beginning of the school year in September, although there are some vacancies during the year. Advertisements for posts begin to appear in the Spring Term and continue through the Summer Term. Advertisements are placed by schools and Local Authorities in the Times Educational Supplement (weekly on Fridays) and Education Guardian (Tuesdays). These publications are available in the Library. Some authorities produce a monthly booklet of posts vacant.
- You will be given advice about applying for posts and you are encouraged to prepare applications early. Sessions are held to give you support in this and university and staff at your lead school will help you.
- There will be a Careers Fair where all final year trainees can find important and useful information about applying for teaching posts.
- Visits to schools, most schools encourage applicants to visit the school before they apply.

Confidentiality and Professional Sensitivity

- As a member of any profession, you must learn to handle confidential information. No one can defend you if you break a confidence. You will talk to teachers, and they may give you confidential information about children in the classes in which you work. All such information must be treated carefully and not spread indiscreetly to people not professionally concerned, or to the children themselves.
- You must also become sensitive towards the feelings of fellow members of the profession. When you visit schools you will, of course, be weighing up what you see and hear. You should be very careful in committing this to paper. When recording information and observations, or writing assignments, 'code' the names of individuals and institutions to preserve anonymity. Lack of consideration for the sensitivity of staff in a school can ruin good relations which have been built up over many years.

Complaints Procedure

- We hope that you will feel able to consult your link tutor in the first instance if you have any problems with the sessions at the University. However, a formal complaints procedure is in place, and you are advised to use the correct procedures, as outlined in the Student Handbook.

Membership of a Professional Body

- Just as with a qualified teacher, you will be working in a position of trust and considerable responsibility. It is not likely that you will require such support, but you are strongly advised to take up student teacher-level membership of a union (often free) before your first visits to schools. We also recommend that you join the Chartered College of Teaching.

University Services

Disability and needs disclosure

If you have an illness or a disability which you think may benefit from support from the module team we encourage you to disclose this to your link tutor. Disclosure is a personal preference and not compulsory but for your needs to be met you will need to declare them as we do not have access to this information otherwise. For further information, it is suggested that you contact the University Disability & Inclusion Advice Service (DIAS) in Student Support.

Equal Opportunities Statement

All University Programmes and Subjects are implemented and evaluated in the light of the Code of Practice on Equal Opportunities and Religious Diversity and the University's Policy for Learning and Teaching. These documents cover the main issues of equality, disadvantage, inclusivity and access to the curriculum, and are published in the Student Handbook for each trainee.

Equality & Diversity/Reporting

Everyone within our community has rights and responsibilities in respect of equality and diversity. You have the right to expect a safe and respectful learning environment with inclusive access to learning and teaching. You have a responsibility to ensure you treat other trainees, staff and those you come into contact with through school and University sessions with respect. We hope that the University meets everyone's expectations in terms of equality, however, should you need to raise any issues of concern with us during your time here the Student Handbook provides information on our Complaints, Appeals, Misconduct and Fitness for Professional Practice procedures. You should also note that we have an additional informal and confidential equality process through which anyone can let us know if they feel that they been discriminated against by others in our community. If you wish to tell us about any discrimination that has happened to you during your time here, contact the Student Union President, Head of Student Support or the Equality & Diversity Co-ordinator or complete a 'Discriminatory Incident' Form.

The Chaplaincy Centre, built in 1994, is located in a central position in the University quadrangle, reflecting the importance the University attaches to its origins and ethos and the Chaplaincy's own mission statement: to build a Christian community at the heart of the life of the University.

The building is open every day from 6.00am to 11pm for use by individuals or groups for prayer, reflection, and study. There is a thriving Christian community within the University made up of people from different nationalities and worshipping traditions. The main focus of worship is the weekly Sunday evening service at 6pm, to which all members of the University community are warmly invited.

Rev Michelle Parkman is a full-time Anglican Chaplain, and she is assisted by a team of associate chaplains drawn from local churches in Plymouth. The day to day running of the Chaplaincy is in the hands of the Chaplain (ext. 2047) and two Pastoral Assistants (ext. 6528). The Chaplaincy team are available to provide help and support to all members of the community. Do make yourself known to them as soon as you find your feet in the University.
